ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT

It's always special when our alumni come back to visit Hannan, but it's even more special when one comes back to share his or her talents with our current students. Our Hannan family is excited to welcome back Rebecca Sigler, AHHS class of 2013, as our newest faculty member in the Language Arts Department. Ms. Sigler will be teaching English II, English III and English III AP to sophomore and junior students.

Rebecca Sigler

Class of 2013

We'd like to congratulate Rebecca on her recent graduation from Belmont Abbey College this past May. She received a Bachelor of Arts in English with a minor in History and graduated with the following honors: Summa Cum Laude, Honors Institute Scholar, and Hintemeyer Scholar (Catholic Leadership Graduate). Belmont Abbey College is a Catholic, liberal arts, Benedictine college located in North Carolina where the focus is on educating the whole student - mind, body and soul.

Although Rebecca was born and raised in Covington, the adventurous side of her always wanted to move away from home for college. She originally considered majoring in Art, but quickly committed to studying English with the intention of teaching in the future. "The classroom is an atmosphere that naturally facilitates learning, and there's something exciting about contributing to that as a teacher, from the other side of that classroom," Sigler said. "I'm eager to continue being a part of the education at Hannan. I want to be able to provide for the students in the same way I was provided for in high school."

During her time at Hannan, Rebecca was extremely involved - Captain of the Basketball Team, Student Body President, Vice-President of National Honors Society, President of Mu Alpha Theta, Student Ambassador, Campus Ministry Team, the list goes on and goes. She also graduated as the class Salutatorian. "Hannan is something that I invested in as a high school student, and I was rewarded 100-fold in who I became."

As Hannan alumni, we are all united by the values and traditions of what Archbishop Hannan was founded on. "There's something to be said about Hannan's commitment to values and traditions. Despite time's natural changes, alumni of various classes would be surprised at the similarities bridging their high school experiences. The goodness gleaned from their respective Hannan experiences is, at root, the same."

Rebecca is excited to be coming back home...this time as a faculty member! She is a firm believer that goodness is always returned. "We poured ourselves into this school, and the school poured back into us through a commitment to excellence, virtue, and the future of its students."
